Epitaph's "Fire from the Soul" is a solid progressive rock album, somewhat in the same vein as ELO with more heaviness, not only in music style but lyrical content as well.

This veteran band continues to impress with stylish musicianship, high production values and consistently effective songwriting. There are a couple of tracks when things slow down just a little too much for my taste, but not enough to derail the entire CD.

Fans of progressive rock, as opposed to progressive metal, will no doubt find plenty to their liking on "Fire From the Soul."

Very well done albu, high production, I'm thinking fans of progressive rock, as opposed to progressive metal will like this album.
